Background:
Section 1111(b)(2)(G) of the Elementary and Secondary Education Act of 1965 (ESEA), as amended by the Every Student Succeeds Act (ESSA), requires that a State ensure that each school district in the State provide for an annual assessment of English language proficiency (ELP) for all English learners (ELs). The annual ELP assessment must be aligned to the State’s ELP standards (as required under section 1111(b)(1)(F) of the ESEA). Other sections of ESEA, as amended by ESSA, explicitly or implicitly indicate that the ELP assessment must be statewide.

These provisions include:
- Sections 3111(b)(2)(E)(i), 3113(b)(6)(A), 3115(g)(2)(A), 3116(b)(2)(A), and 3121(a)(3) of the ESEA refer to the State’s ELP assessment;
- Section 1111(c)(4)(A)(ii) requires a State to establish long-term goals for increasing the percentage of students making progress in achieving English proficiency, and measures of interim progress toward meeting those goals, based on the State’s ELP assessment;
- Section 1111(c)(4)(B)(iv) requires a State to include an indicator in its statewide accountability system that annually measures progress in achieving English language proficiency; and
- Section 3113(b)(2) requires a State to establish standardized, statewide entrance and exit procedures for ELs to identify and reclassify ELs.

Notably, each State currently administers a single, statewide annual ELP assessment. In part, this reflects recent progress in developing high-quality ELP assessments. Two consortia – WIDA and English Language Proficiency Assessments for the 21st Century (ELPA21) – have brought together 45 States plus the District of Columbia and certain outlying areas to advance language development and academic achievement for linguistically diverse students. These collective efforts have included the development of high-quality ELP standards and aligned ELP assessments. In the 2013-2014 school year, 33 States plus the District of Columbia administered the WIDA ACCESS for ELLs assessment as the State’s annual ELP assessment.

Discussion Questions:
While these statutory provisions promote the purpose of Title I – to provide a fair, equitable, and high quality education for all students, including ELs – they also raise questions. For example:
- How can regulations related to ELP assessments help provide consistency and clarity that ELP assessments must be statewide?
• With performance on ELP assessments now included within school accountability under Title I, how might regulations ensure that the annual ELP assessments used to meet Federal accountability requirements fulfill the rigorous technical standards for quality under Title I?

Draft regulatory language:
Below is draft regulatory language intended to support discussions on this issue among the committee members. The existing regulations (under 34 C.F.R. §200.6 – Inclusion of all students) are provided in black text. Blue text indicates regulatory revisions that restate the new ESSA statutory language or related technicalities (i.e. renumbering). Text provided in red is offered as proposed responses to the questions above.
